The above are SOLID FACTS, that are sustained and substantiated by the strongest proof, and by the experience of Hosts of Housekeepers, in this and adjacent cities. From a long list of testimonials, we publish the following:

Salt Lake City, August 22d, 1884.
I have used a Bismarck Cooking Range for two years and find that it gives us tire satisfaction; saving of fuel as well as being a quick cooker.
To Messrs. Jennings & Sons.

Salt Lake City, August 21, 1884.
I have been using the Bismarck Range for some time and I find it first class in all respects. It has large flues, good size ovens, full size water back and consequently bakes, boils and heats water in the most satisfactory manner.
To Messrs. Jennings & Sons.

Salt Lake City, Utah, August 18th, 1884.
Gentlemen:—Answering your favor, concerning the Bismarck Range I purchased of you in 1883. I can assure you I consider it superior to anything offered in this market. I have had it in constant use and it has given satisfaction in all particulars, and I can confidently recommend it to any one in want of a first-class Range.
To Messrs. Wm. Jennings & Sons.

Regarding your favor of 12th inst., asking about the Bismarck Range purchased of you in 1883, I can assure you I consider it superior to anything offered in this market. I have had it in constant use and it has given satisfaction in all particulars, and I can confidently recommend it to any one in want of a first-class Range.
To Messrs. Wm. Jennings & Sons.

Through my business here as plumber, I have fitted up over 100 Water Jacket attachments for the Bismarck Range in this City, Ogden, Logan, etc., and in every case I am conversant with, the Ranges have given entire satisfaction, both as to cooking qualities and hot water attachments, for culinary and bath room purposes.
Yours respectfully,
DAVID JAMES.

Some Observations.

"This is the editor, is it?"

"Yes, sir, it is."

"Well, now, Mr. Editor, I'll tell you what I'm going to do. I'm introducing the 'Morning Star' brand of coffee among your merchants here, and if you'll give me your address, I'll send two pounds of the 'Morning Star' to your house. I want your wife to serve you with a cup of it, and after you've tried it, you may say just what you please about it in your paper."

The editor, of course, beams with happiness. The prospective donation of two pounds of choice coffee is enough to make an editor happy. Unfortunately, however, his family is away for the season, and he replies:

"If you had just as soon, suppose you send that coffee up to the business manager's house. Here he comes; I'll introduce you," and having done so, the observer settles down to hard work. He would have introduced the philanthropist to the business manager anyhow. It is a rule in the Mail office that all philanthropists shall be introduced to the business manager.

The representative of the 'Morning Star' coffee tells his story very gracefully to the business manager.

"I'm going to send two pounds of our superb coffee up to your house."

The business manager has met philanthropists before.

"Two pounds of coffee," he replies; "how much is the coffee a pound?"

"Thirty-five cents."

"All right; my house is No. 2332 Blank street. Send up your coffee. Here's 70c."

"I beg your pardon," says the philanthropist; "I'm going to give you the coffee, and—"

"But I don't want you to give me the coffee. I'm able to pay for it."

"Yes, yes, I know that; but you know I expect you to reciprocate by saving what you think about the 'Morning Star' in your paper."

"Then you want me to give you something, do you?"

"O, no, I simply expect you to say whatever you think the coffee deserves."

"We usually trade on a cash basis," the business manager responds, "but let's see, two pounds of coffee will be worth 70 cents; three lines of local 75 cents; you owe a balance of 5 cents; it will be very hard work to get very much of notice into three lines, but we'll close the deal if you say so."

The philanthropist, for some reason, couldn't dispute the newspaper's business logic, but still he couldn't comprehend why his generosity was looked upon upon in such a coldly practical manner as the business man applied to it. He succumbed, however, and concluded that he wouldn't send the coffee at all, but would make a contract for advertising in cash.

The philanthropic scheme of the coffee man, analyzed in a business manner, was every whit as business like as it would be on the part of a newspaper man to step into a mercantile establishment and say to the proprietor, "Here, I'm going to send you my paper for three months; after you have read it you may give me just as many dollars worth of dry goods in return as you think us deserving of."

Peculiar ideas are entertained regarding the newspaper business. More ridiculous propositions are made to newspaper publishers than to any other class of business men. Not long ago a Texas man wrote the Mail a letter saying that he would appreciate the publication of the "enclosed item of general interest," and that if the publishers would send him a marked copy of the paper and advertising rates, he would be pleased to send them cash advertising when he needed it. The "item of general interest" was an advertisement. The publishers replied that if he would kindly send them fifteen dollars in cash as a gift and his rates on any money he might have to loan, they would be pleased to borrow of him whenever the occasion arose. And why should such absurd propositions be made? Simply because the newspaper profession has educated a good proportion of the public into the idea that a donation to an editor of a fifteen cent box of strawberries, or a peck of fresh vegetables, is as capable as a thousand-dollar gold piece would be to an ordinary man. The coffee man above referred to, after the conversation had concluded, laughingly and frankly added: "That's all right—its business—but we catch lots of 'em!"—Des Moines Sunday Mail.
